01 / Understand the task

The brief we send clients so that round one is never a guess.

Write an illustration brief that gives direction without prescribing every visual decision.

Choose one small, real example to work on. A focused attempt gives you better evidence than a general impression.

Your example: _____

Your audience: _____

Your intended outcome: _____

One constraint: _____

02 / Put a method to work

1. Audience: who will use or see the illustration?

2. Message: what should they understand or feel?

3. Context: where does the illustration appear and at what sizes?

4. Constraints: palette, accessibility, format, deadline and usage.

5. References: explain the useful quality of each reference, not just a style label.

6. Feedback: agree the decision-maker, milestones and revision scope.

Working notes: _____

_____

03 / A worked practice scenario

Brief: an original vector scene explaining a learner moving from a first sketch to a finished project.

Needs: readable at mobile size, no essential text inside the image, a useful description and a static reduced-motion version.

Success: a learner can explain the before/after relationship without needing the caption.

Apply the method to your own example. What changes?

Your first attempt: _____

Your revision: _____

04 / Reflect and keep going

Does the brief explain the purpose and constraints while leaving room for an original idea?

What is clearer after using this workbook?

_____

What evidence supports that conclusion?

_____

What is the smallest useful next step?

_____

Feedback prompt: "I noticed ____. That helped / made it harder to ____. One thing to try is ____."
